Chairman James Naeff,
Mr. Naeff, our country and laws.

RECEIVED
FAIR POLITICAL PRACTICES COMMISSION

03 MAY 25 AM 8:34

If it walks like a duck, talks like a duck, it must be a duck.

Mr. Steven Russo, the commission chief of enforcement said " You're dealing with a very sophisticated player that presumably had all the resources available to comply with the requirements. If one breaks a rule or law, he must be punished to the max, no if and or buts. The Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee violated campaign finance disclosure rules in 2000, in addition they failed to submit by 1/31/2001 an electronic version of its report of the state's web site, not made till 3/28/2002. One year and two months late. Mr. Steven Russo admits negligence on the Democratic part, he rewards people who behave badly.

They should have been fined $3.1 million the fine amount not disclosed, they missed the deadline by three months. I guess it all depends on the meaning of is, is.
They pulled the wool over your eyes
I am appalled by the lack of strict enforcement of the law. Our apical Commission did was zero there a paper the hand, you were too easy.

I expect your Agency to enforce the law, that is why we have rules and

This fee of $ 80, 000 was not large enough. This is not acceptable.

You read the rules and laws, you explained the rule, reads a messages not to do it again who says them does not pay. As a taxpayer I am very disappointed in the way your firm

handled the matter

Regards,

Mrs. Lillian Agnew
